

Ada compliance

Accommodations: As mental health providers, it is our responsibility to accommodate individuals with disabilities. Our counseling practice is located on the second floor of a historic home and requires clients to climb a set of stairs. Because of the historic nature of the structure, the building is exempt from many of the construction regulations required by the Americans with Disability Act (ADA), such as ramps and/or elevators. If you have a difference in ability, making it difficult or impossible for you to climb stairs, we are happy to accommodate this difference by identifying an alternative location to hold your counseling sessions. In some cases this may be an in-home session, an outdoor location (weather dependent), video call or using another therapist's more accessible office. We will work together to determine the best location and/or circumstances based on your individual needs. While you are not required to disclose the details of your difference in ability, we do ask that you share your need for an accommodation prior to your first scheduled appointment.